At USJ, East and West continue the centuries-old dialogue through which Macao acquired its unique identity. Our close links to the Catholic University of Portugal and to Catholic universities in Angola, Brazil and Mozambique set us in the privileged position to contribute to Macao as a bridge between China and Portuguese-speaking countries.

We use English as the medium for internal communication and much of our teaching, since this allows us to involve staff and welcome students from many parts of the world, while providing our graduates with an important skill for today’s globalised world. Our programmes include modules to broaden student’s outlook on the world and stimulate creative thinking.

We care for the professional competence of our graduates, but we are also mindful that they should experience a truly university environment, where they learn to analyse, question, evaluate and decide as responsible members of their community.

進一步瞭解聖大
The University of Saint Joseph (Macao) is a Catholic university of China, rooted in a long tradition of intercultural exchange that has been the hallmark of Catholic higher education in Macao since the College of Saint Paul, founded in 1594. The project of the Jesuit fathers Valignano, Ruggieri and Ricci inspires our view of higher education with a universal character capable of promoting creative dialogue between the cultural, scientific, ethical and philosophical traditions of China and Europe. The combined local and Portuguese roots of the University make it particularly suited to embody at the academic level Macao’s strategic objective to act as a platform from which to boost relations between China and Portuguese-speaking countries.

In recognition of its heritage, USJ has developed as an international academy in which East meets West. Our university’s commitment to academic excellence and to whole person development fosters our vision of a caring, ethically responsible, economically, socially and environmentally sustainable society.

"Scientia et Virtus" (Knowledge and Virtue), motto of the Catholic Diocese of Macao, guides our academic community to a harmonious pursuit of truth and the common good, for the benefit of humanity, the Chinese people and Macao’s own multicultural society.
USJ is an international university that welcomes all who seek academic excellence. Our multinational student and staff communities are key actors for a cultural interchange branded by diversity and holistic development. The Faculty of Religious Studies (FRS) is a community of scholars and students engaged in research, teaching and studying the disciplines of Philosophy and Theology, together with other necessary, ancillary disciplines. Traditionally, our fields of study were referred to as the Handmaid and the Queen of the Sciences and here, at the University of Saint Joseph, we can proudly claim our place at the heart of the academic work and mission of this Catholic University.

Two giants of Catholic philosophy and theology give us our basic orientation. St. Thomas Aquinas, the great Dominican theologian, teaches us that human nature is created with the capacity to know and love God; he is naturally capax Dei. St. Augustine, the other guide, is often called the teacher of grace, doctor gratiae. He reminds us that we long to know God in the depths of our hearts and we cannot at rest until we do. Created to live in communion with his Creator each human being is a free and intelligent individual, integrated in the community with his or her own duties and rights and the connecting link between the two great spheres of reality – the material and the spiritual – and fully belonging to both. Accordingly, wherever there is human life, there is religion.

Understanding religion in its historical, social, political, intellectual, and artistic aspects is, therefore, self-evidently important. Nevertheless, whilst necessary to understand the human condition, such an approach is not sufficient, since it does not fully engage with the truth claims of religion in general and specifically with the Christian claim of God’s definitive and full self-revelation in Jesus Christ. FRS provides a venue within the University of Saint Joseph and the wider local community for the exploration of the religious, historical, intellectual, social, and cultural aspects of the various religious traditions and especially those of the Christian faith. It is both a place where religion can be encountered and studied and one in which all can come to engage with the Catholic faith, understood as a life-giving sacra doctrina, Holy Teaching. Being situated in Macao, FRS continues the long tradition of dialogue between faith and culture.

At USJ, we offer students a range of core Humanities disciplines including Philosophy, Chinese and Portuguese languages and cultures, and the study of Literature, Linguistics, History and Heritage. In each area of studies, we are concerned with critical, logical thinking and observation, the ability to analyse, evaluate and report through clearly expressed language. Our students are also encouraged to broaden their learning experience by participating in international exchange programmes.

Our central goal is to enrich the knowledge and understanding of our students about their world, while imparting fundamental practical skills. The study of the Humanities opens the door to a diverse range of career paths. We welcome you to join us.

FACULTY OF HUMANITIES
人文學系
This programme is designed to enable students to achieve a high level of proficiency in Portuguese together with the ability to translate general texts. From the outset, the programme will develop student's communication skills in spoken and written Portuguese, closely supported by our faculty of native speakers of Portuguese, Cantonese, and Putonghua. At the third year level, students are encouraged to spend one semester at a university in the Portuguese-speaking world. The programme aims to contribute to the formation of qualified bilingual talents addressing the need for Portuguese-Chinese bilingual professionals for employment in public and private organisations in Macao, China and in the eight countries where Portuguese is an official language.

本課程旨在培育高質素的葡語人才，使其具備翻譯一般廣泛性文字的能力。課程一開始著重發展學生在葡語講和寫的技巧，我們以粵語、普通話和葡語為母語的教師都會提供貼心的支援。在課程的第三學年，我們會鼓勵學生到其他葡語國家的大學進行為期一個學期的學習。課程的目標是要為澳門以及世界其他八個葡語系國家的公共機構及私人企業培養出專業的葡中雙語人才。
This programme is designed to provide essential overall training in the area of Portuguese-Chinese translation. Professionals with the ability to translate and interpret between Portuguese and Chinese are in demand in both the public and private sectors in Macao and China, as well as in Portuguese-speaking countries. The programme is designed for those who have some knowledge of Portuguese. In the early stages of the four-year programme, students develop their skills in Portuguese and fine-tune their competence in written Chinese. At the same time, students are progressively introduced to translation activities. The advanced stages of the programme continue to emphasise Portuguese language skills, while further developing competence and performance in translation, addressing different registers and professional areas, and familiarising students with the use of state-of-the-art technology in translation work.

As one of the pioneers offering an Entrepreneurship stream in a Bachelor of Business Administration programme, our School of Business and Law focuses on innovation and social responsibility. We train young entrepreneurs in starting their own business, or as corporate entrepreneurs promoting new initiatives in large organisations.

Our programmes are designed for whole person development, training leaders not only in their business skills but also in their social and humanistic values. Our vision is that our students join society to apply their leadership capacity in creating social change, as well as offering solutions to improve people’s lives through innovative ventures and social enterprises.

At the School of Business and Law, we adopt an international style of teaching through various methods including problem-solving, case studies and project-based learning, to name a few. We aim to offer a unique experience to our students where internationalisation meets local tradition. We do this through a faculty of multiple nationalities, students from different parts of the worlds, a mixture of global and local business case studies, and opportunities to visit different organisations in Macau and other nearby Chinese cities.

The School of Education (SED) is a learning community in which students are valued and cared for. Nothing is more important to achieving our aims than guiding you to excel in your educational studies so that you are equipped for a principled and industrious life in schools and educational communities in Macao or overseas.

Four factors play a role in the success of the SED, making it a leading place in Macao to learn and research about education and society: our close bonds within the Catholic community, a commitment to supporting students’ learning and wellbeing, a team of multilingual and multicultural tutors and our central location in the city.

We prepare you to fulfill your dream of being a well-rounded 21st century educator. During your studies, you will gain advanced knowledge, transferable skills and dispositions that are tantamount to excellence in teaching and learning.

In addition to classroom interactions, you will participate in a variety of outdoor educational experiences such as field trips, workshops and seminars, community service, aesthetic and scientific experiments, environmental awareness activities, intercultural programmes, and more.

We welcome you to this School, where students and staff are driven by integrity, inclusion, perseverance, critical thinking and creativity.

Welcome to FSS. Here you will find a real community of students, alumni and staff with the mission "to train students with cutting-edge knowledge and a humanistic approach, to be competent professionals in the field of social sciences and responsible participants in the local and the international society." Thus, our vision is "to be a significant actor in the development of social work and psychology profession in Macao through interdisciplinary education, research and services.

To guide our action, we have to move and, together, our team identified five core values summarised in the acronym CHIRP:

- Cutting-edge Knowledge – systematically updating our syllabi with the most recent information, including research about the reality of Macao;
- Humanistic Approach – focused on the person, we strive to help our students to reach their dreams, being present and supportive in all the dimensions of their academic lives, we emphasise a mentoring programme for each of our students;
- Interdisciplinary Collaboration – with programmes in the domains of Psychology and Social Work, we integrate knowledge from both and also from other scientific areas as a way of reaching a holistic view of the human being;
- Responsible Participation – assuming that we all should be active actors in our lives, we believe that in participating we can achieve our potential. Thus, we invite our students to be participants in their educational process and in their communities;
- Professional Competency – being aware of the highest professional standards in Psychology and Social Work, we prepare our students to reach those standards and to be recognised, competent professionals.

I confirm and follow the ambition of my predecessor Fr. Dominique Tyl, “to contribute, with other partners, to the flourishing of the Macao community by giving it responsible experts open to wide horizons.”

The University of Saint Joseph is a leading international university in Macao S.A.R., where the creative and cultural industries are acknowledged as a strategic area for the development of a vibrant and pioneering cluster of businesses and entrepreneurs. The field of Creative Industries represents an innovative paradigm for our contemporary knowledge-based society, closely associated with recent trends in cultural activities, digital emergent technologies, and sustainable urban development.

Created in 2012, the new Faculty of Creative Industries integrates some of the most successful programmes of our university, ranging from the most traditional sub-sectors of the Creative Industries, such as Design, Fashion Design, Architecture, Digital Cinema and Communication & Media, to new fields of study that increasingly converge on the creative domain, such as Information Systems and Environment & Urban Development.

Some of our programmes, such as Architecture, Design, Fashion Design and Digital Cinema, are unique within the higher education system of Macao, but above all, the integration of each of these areas within the same faculty provides a unique multidisciplinary community in which students have access to exceptional education opportunities and a work environment that allows them to extend their abilities to the utmost.

With our community of students and academic staff, sited within the exponentially growing entertainment and business environment of Macao, USJ is already a leading university in the field of Creative Industries in East Asia.

Modern societies are facing major environmental, social, economic and health challenges as consequence of rapid population growth, urbanisation and rise in global affluence. These concerns are particularly relevant for Macao, located downstream to the highly industrialised Pearl River Delta region and one of the most densely populated areas of the world. Overcoming these challenges will require a coordinated effort from different sectors of the society. In particular, advances in science and technology seem fundamental aids to a successful transition towards more sustainable and healthier societies.

The mission of the Institute of Science and Environment is to develop research and teaching of the highest standards in different domains of science, including Biology, Environmental Sciences, and Ocean and Earth Sciences. We aim to contribute towards a deeper understanding of the natural world by a sound scientific approach and to prepare well-qualified professionals that can respond to tomorrow’s global challenges and lead the way towards a sustainable development of Macao and the world.

The Institute is also focused on science dissemination and education as it believes that proper education in science and technology is fundamental for responsible decisions by citizens and, ultimately, social progress. The institute regularly undertakes science and environmental education actions directed to the general public and to students from all levels of education.

Our students have the opportunity to develop their skills in an international and cross-disciplinary environment where critical and creative thinking is fostered. This provides a dynamic and engaging learning environment where students can develop as skilled professionals and responsible citizens.
This programme will prepare you for a successful career in environment-related areas. As a professional, you will have the opportunity to contribute with solutions for the environmental challenges that the world is facing.

The programme aims to respond to the worldwide growing demand for well-trained professionals in Environmental Science as consequence of increasing pressure on natural resources and environmental degradation. This demand is particularly evident in China, including the Pearl River Delta region. The course provides a broad formation in scientific areas related with environmental science and promotes interaction with other areas. For this, the programme includes:

• Foundation modules on different fields of Science: Biology, Earth Sciences, Chemistry, Physics, and Mathematics
• Environment-related modules: Pollution, Energy, Waste Management, Environmental Policies, and Environmental Impact Assessment
• Modules that promote cross talk with other disciplines such as Ethics, Management, or Architecture

The programme has a high proportion of hands-on learning hours in order to provide adequate technical training in tools, methods and techniques useful in Environmental Science. Students exiting this programme will have the opportunity to pursue their studies in this area at USJ in the already running Master of Environmental Sciences and Management.
